Supporting Individuals that are Deaf or Hard of Hearing

The Challenge:

Find an effective and affordable approach to support attendees who are Deaf or Hard of Hearing.

The Answer:

Interact-Streamer™

The ADA requires that you provide equal access for all conference attendees. How are you meeting this requirement for individuals that are Deaf or Hard of Hearing? Hiring transcriptionists is expensive and does not work well for side meetings or conversations in exhibit halls. The answer is Interact-Streamer™.

How It Works

Interact-Streamer™ is a web-based captioning and translation system specifically designed to support conferences and exhibit halls. Streamer™ runs on laptops, MacBooks, iPads, iPhones, Android phones, Chromebooks and more. With Streamer™ there are no apps to install, software modules to download, invite codes to publish, or QR codes to generate. Conference attendees simply go to the website, www.streamer.center, and log in using the account that we'll set up for your conference. That's it. Simple and easy.

Conference Handouts

Just Drag-n-Drop your handouts into the transcription window and they're sent to all your conference attendees. No more hassle of printing copies or collecting email addresses, just Drag-n-Drop and you're done.

Exhibit Halls and Side Sessions

Streamer™ goes beyond simply supporting your Keynote and session presentations. It works anywhere, anytime. Each of your exhibitors can have their own account and private Streamer room. This lets everyone communicate with anyone, anywhere and anytime and in pretty much any language.

Removing Language Barriers

Plus, with Streamer™ whatever you say is simultaneously translated and, if you want, spoken aloud in other languages. Each attendee can view, and listen, to the presentation in their own preferred language

Budget Friendly

Streamer costs around 1/100th the amount of traditional approaches like CART. With Interact-Streamer there are no per-minute or per-session fees. Use your account as often as you like, without any limits or additional fees.
